The Telephone an Aid to the Salesman

"Let me speak with the superintendent, please."

"Mr. Wilson, this is Allen. I am at Blank & Company's. They want a reprint of 50,000 copies of their last booklet providing we can make delivery in 6 days. Can we do it?"

"Good! You can begin work at once. I will arrange for the formal order. Good-bye."

The above indicates one of the many ways in which the telephone helps a salesman to secure an order.

While the salesman is in a customer's office, the telephone keeps him in touch with his own office or manufacturing plant. Rush orders can be given immediate attention. Matters involving special consideration, or the approval of his firm, can be settled without delay. By means of the telephone, orders can be clinched on the spot, that might otherwise be lost entirely.
